

PRESENTS A ONE-DAY WORKSHOP ON

WINNING CONTRACTS DISPUTES: TIPS FOR DRAFTING, NEGOTIATING AND LITIGATING CONTRACTS

Overview:

Contract disputes are somewhat unique in that they arise from a series of communications and dealings that allow the parties to “create” the evidence at every turn, both good and bad. “Creating” the best evidence (that is truthful and accurately documents your position), avoiding pitfalls, and controlling the ground rules at every step of the contract negotiation, documentation, and performance process can significantly reduce the chance that contract litigation will arise, and materially increase the likelihood of success if it does.

▼ Course Objective

This workshop intends to equip participants with the ability to understand the principles of contract drafting, the theoretical overview of legal and linguistic approaches to contract drafting, the strategies in avoiding contract disputes at creation and performance stage as well as the strategies in winning contract disputes from the stage of creation to the final stage of litigation and enforcement of the judgment.
