Program overview:

Real estate development is a complex and interactive process that relies on multiple skills, efforts, and knowledge, of different professional disciplines to be successful.

Value adding and opportunistic property investments are complex both in their initial scope and their cash flow projections.

Development of real estate projects require greater skill and flexibility from Analysts and an ability to work simultaneously with project partners.

In this course you will learn the basic elements of the real estate development process. You will become familiar with the steps and analyses that developers and other professionals engage in during the real estate development process. You will develop an understanding of the development process from building a project budget to valuing raw land before purchase, to finance concepts used by lenders.

For Whom:

This program is designed for Real Estate Developers, Surveyors, Real Estate professionals at any level with exposure to real estate financial models on a frequent basis, Fund managers, Asset managers, Land managers, Planning managers and Lenders
